

▼ In the round

Interior designer Henry Priddleaux has collaborated with Jennifer Mannes to create Rondal, £2,695, a three-dimensional design inspired by a blend of Regency and Art Deco architecture and woven from Jennifer's iPS Purpose performance fibre made from recycled water bottles. 'The Rondal rug is incredibly versatile, lending itself well to a distinctly classical scheme or something more modern,' says Mr Priddleaux (020-3803 0667; www.jennifermannes.co.uk).

▲ Joy of colour

Designed to add a pop of glorious colour to your table, Robbin salt and pepper grinders, £65 each, are available from November 10 from British family-owned accessories brand, Addison Rose (01605 281014; www.addisonrose.com).

◀ A decorative decade

Raised in the foothills of the Scottish Highlands, fabric house Inchyra was established in 2012, born of Caroline Inchyra's quest to re-create the look and feel of antique linens. Now celebrating its 10th anniversary, Inchyra's collection is admired for its subtle colour palette and fine quality sustainable linens, as well as pure Scottish wools and co-ordinating cushions, throws and lampshades. Latest designs include the Wyherwell linen collection, from £110 per m, shown here (01738 690066; www.inchyra.com).

▲ On the bench

Finished in hand-applied Antique Gesso, the pretty Flax bench, £2,100 plus fabric, is inspired by an 18th century Italian design, from Julian Chichester (020-7022 2928; www.julianchichester.com).
